Emergency Medical Services Training Course Announcement

The Texas Engineering Extension Service (TEEX) and the Indiana Department of Homeland Security present:

PER 211 Medical Management for CBRNE Events

Target Audience

This course is designed for all public safety personnel who may have a role in medical management of CBRNE events. Public safety agencies including emergency management personnel, first response agencies (fire, law enforcement, emergency medical services, public health personnel, etc.) volunteer disaster agencies, public works, transportation officials, and other agencies will benefit from a thorough understanding of the performance level (operations).

Course Description

The 2-day course is designed to develop the skills necessary in for Medical Management of Chemical, Biological, Radiological, Nuclear, and Explosive (CBRNE) events. The course is a performance level, instructor-facilitated segment. The 16-hour face-to-face component is a combination of facilitated discussion, simulator hands-on training and traditional classroom style instruction. Subject areas covered in the course will include the ability to use available resources to protect themselves during a CBRNE event, participants will be able to describe the effects of chemical, radiological, biological, and explosive agents, identify and treat the signs and symptoms of exposure, for all patients including pediatric needs. In addition, participants will learn the All-Hazards approach to prevention, preparedness, response, recovery and mitigation in the context of CBRNE incidents.
